It has been ascertained during tests carried out by HMS Island that there is serious risk, as the material used in the helmet cracks when tested. It has been ascertained that there is a mass production fault that affects the strength of the helmet material.

If you possess or know of any of these helmets, YOU MUST NO LONGER USE THEM. Store the helmet out of the reach of children and young people and return it to the place where it was purchased.

When you return the helmet to the store, you must use your receipt of purchase or other documentation showing that you purchased the product from the store that has marketed our product. You can choose to have your money refunded or alternatively, you can ask the store to exchange the product for another helmet from another batch that is not affected by the fault.
